

When he found out he was dying, he really started living.

The life of student Steve Sawyer is an amazing story. Steve was a hemophiliac who found out during his sophomore year that he had contracted HIV from unscreened blood. He was told he had only months to live. But he faced death with great hope. He believed that one day he would spend eternity with "the greatest love in the universe" (Steve's way of describing God).

Though initially angry with God, Steve eventually found peace in knowing God. As a result of that life change, Steve spent his last remaining months telling fellow students how they could live with hope, no matter what challenges life might bring. Check out Steve's story for yourself: "Living with Hope" on the Web at www.EveryStudent.com.

EveryStudent.com