

How can you live with hope, even with AIDS?

Steve Sawyer was a hemophiliac who contracted HIV and hepatitis through unscreened blood transfusions. His earthly life ended on March 13, 1999. But Steve faced death with great hope and courage. Why? Because he had come to know "the greatest love in the universe" (Steve's way of describing God).

Death is something we all face, even if it's not imminent. Check out Steve's story to learn more about having hope in the midst of life's difficulties. See the feature article "Living with Hope" on the Web at www.EveryStudent.com.
